Machine Overview

In 2007, Hewlett Packard introduced the P1005/P1505 line of desktop printers for personal users and small workgroups. Specifically, the HP P1005-series doesn't have network capability and is designed primarily for personal users. The HP P1505-series has network capability (P1505N), which make them an attractive choice in the small workgroups environments. Both machines come with a small footprint, are very reliable and easy to use. These machines are replacing HP 1010 line, the most popular selling printer line of all time. The placement of the HP P1005 and P1505 machines is significant and will continue to grow worldwide.
